Background

A mobile telephone creates more opportunities for people to talk with each other, especially while in public places.

This expanded ability to converse has some negative aspects brought about by talk being an easy-to-use, expressive, and also noisy activity.

There are several ways that people attempt to deal with the situation of having private conversations while in a public place. First, individuals may be noisy in their conversation. This approach requires judgment about when privacy is not an overriding concern or when talk would be considered acceptable or too important to miss in a given situation.

Second, an individual may talk quietly. It is not uncommon to see a telephone user in a corner of the room in an attempt to shield a conversation. This
